On the 31st of March last, the closing day of what newspaper men all concede to be the busiest quarter of the year, returns were made by the several newspaper concerns of this city, showing the folthirds of the Senators present complied with the constitutional provision." The lowing result:

We are surprised to learn, as we do from gentlemen who make frequent business trips to Little Rock, that nism to Memphis upon the part of many persons of influence in that city. That there is any foundation for it, we are at a loss to discern. Memphis is in no just sense a rival of Little Rock. We believe that Memphis is the natural entrepot for so much of Arkansas as lies north of the Arkansas river, and may be made so for that south of it by the perfection of those artificial highways that have done so much for the great Northwest. It is therefore, we are convinced, the duty not alone of Memphians, but of the people of Arkansas to preserve an entente cordiale that will contribute to a trade reciprocity that must be profitable to both. It will not do for our brethren of Arkansas to be led away-by dreams of vast population and metropolitan honors as a consequence of railroad connections with St. Louis by the Cairo and Fulton or already binds them to Memphis and for it.
